7. Services offered by the Portfolio Manager

Under the portfolio management services offered by the Company, the funds of the Client will be managed by a team of experienced professionals comprising of strategists, technical analysts, quantitative analysts, statisticians, specialists in derivative products, etc. The Portfolio Manager's investment philosophy underlines maximizing the risk-adjusted returns depending on the client's risk tolerance. In order to achieve the same, a disciplined investment approach, with adequate risk controls, has been adopted.

Research is based on use of several techniques. Broadly four techniques are used:

i. Fundamental Research

The long-term risk is managed with the help of an Equity research team whose objective is to undertake bottom up research and identify stock ideas to be included in our model portfolio assists the PMS team.

Key Elements of our approach to Fundamental Research are:

- Bottom-up stock selection
- In-depth, independent fundamental research
- High-quality companies with sustainable competitive advantages
- Disciplined valuation approach applying multiple valuation measures Long-term vision, resulting in comparatively low portfolio turnover
- The Portfolio manager may use equity derivative futures and options as a hedge against adverse market dynamics. Equity derivatives would be used in a manner that the exposure does not exceed the funds under management.

ii. Technical Research

The short term risk is managed with the use of a technical analysis team which focuses on determining trend changes over the short and long term and weighs the probability of that trend in decision making. Based on the type of Investment model portfolio chosen by the client long-term investments might also be made on the basis of technical analysis. Statistical models or mathematical models might also be used to make the buying/selling decisions. Based on this the risk may be hedged in the futures or options market from time to time. A long/short position might be taken in the stock/index futures market. The Value of the exposure in the futures market will not exceed the value of the underlying portfolio at any point of time.

Key Elements of Technical Research are:

- Studies historical data of price, volume, open interest and volatility to gauge the underlying trend
- Determine the probability of that trend sustaining
- Forecasting of price objectives and risk to approach at a risk/reward ratio which is useful in decision making
- Determine entry exit points based on such analysis

Technical research is also used to correct the portfolio Beta to the required risk level that has been fixed for the concerned product. In products based on technical analysis investments might be made in stock/index options by buying stock or index options i.e. calls or puts from the derivatives market. The premium to be paid for options purchased shall never exceed the value of the portfolio. The risk in this case is limited to the extent of premium paid for the options purchased. Any model portfolio that buys options in the derivatives market will have a pre-decided limit up to which options can be purchased. This will be in the form a percentage of the portfolio and premium paid for options at any point of time will not exceed this limit. Stock/index options might also be sold to earn the premium. In this case the value of the exposure [(strike price) + (premium)] shall never exceed the value of the underlying portfolio at any point of time.

The Portfolio Manager may from time to time form different investment model portfolios. The model portfolios are clearly categorized on the basis of the type of Research that goes into it. They could be based on fundamental analysis, technical analysis, statistics, quantitative models, market prices or combinations of these types of research.

- a. Within the category of Fundamental Research based model portfolios they may be classified into Blue chip, balanced, high-risk model portfolio, large cap, mid-cap etc. Each model portfolio will have different risk profile. The Investor may choose between the schemes based on the risk appetite.
- b. Similarly model portfolios could be based on technical analysis, quantitative techniques or statistics and classified into aggressive schemes, passive schemes, index investment schemes, High Beta portfolios and low Beta portfolios etc.
- c. Schemes may be introduced where a percentage of the portfolio would be a mix of model portfolios as described above.

iii. Arbitrage opportunities

Investment Objective Arbitrage portfolio is to endeavor to earn attractive risk-adjusted returns on capital invested by taking advantage of spreads between the price of a stock future and the underlying stock. The model portfolio may be considered suitable for investors with investments in relatively low risk assets who are looking for an alternative to potentially increase their returns. The cash futures arbitrage strategy can be employed when the price of the futures exceeds the price of the underlying stock. Two simultaneous transactions are undertaken for example:

- (a) Buying the underlying stock
- (b) Selling the futures.

The position may be held till expiry of the futures contracts. By definition, the price of the futures will equal the closing price of the stock on expiry. Thus, the price differential between the futures and the stock is realized. However, the position could even be closed earlier in case the price differential is realized before expiry or better opportunities are available in other stocks.

Each model portfolio may be given a title or brand name. Such title or brand name does not necessarily indicate the scheme objective or portfolio risks.

iv. Fund of fund portfolio

The Portfolio Manager may devise a model portfolio which may invest the assets under management of each particular client under the various model portfolios of devised by the portfolio manager, including the fundamental as well as technical model portfolios. In case of discretionary portfolio management services, withdrawals and investment in various model portfolios would be at the discretion of the portfolio manager.
