

Exchange Traded Fund Picks (ETF)

What is an ETF?

The ETFs are type of mutual Fund that is listed and traded on the stock exchange just like stocks. It is an open ended Mutual Fund scheme which invest in a basket of stocks that reflects the composition of an index like the Nifty 50 or the Sensex index. The ETF prices reflects the net asset value of basket of stocks in which it is investing. The actively managed Mutual Funds aim to generate alpha by outperforming its benchmark, whereas the ETFs aim to track the underline index and replicate its return.

Our philosophy while selecting ETFs

Top ETFs selected after considering these parameters

Our philosophy while selecting ETFs:-

ETFs are passively managed funds and therefore we are considering fund expense ratio, AUMs, tracking error and liquidity while selecting ETFs.

- Expense Ratio:- ETFs are passively-managed funds and therefore lower the expense ratio better it is.
- Fund AUM:- This means the total asset under management and the ETF should have reasonable AUM compared to its category.
- Tracking Error:- Tracking error is the deviation between index return and the ETF return.
- Liquidity:- This is an important factor for any ETF as these are bought and sold in the stock exchange. If liquidity is not available for any ETF then the investor may not find enough buyers to sell ETF investment.
